Health minister praises local initiative

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

When it comes to healthcare, "we're all in it together," says the Minister of Health.

"It seems sensible that we ask local people to make decisions to manage precious resources," George Smitherman said in an interview during his visit to Haliburton on Friday.

First stop on his tour was the site of the new family medical centre that Dysart et al is building next to the Haliburton Hospital. At 20,000 square feet, it will house not only offices for local doctors, but also the MDS laboratory and offices for other allied health providers – all part of the Family Health Team being sponsored in part by the provincial government.

"We're proud of the partnership that's emerging here," Smitherman says. The medical centre is being paid for by the municipality alone and the local doctors have agreed to become part of the new Family Health Team. The province is providing funding for other health services to ensure the centre provides comprehensive and efficient care for local residents. On Friday, Smitherman announced funding for the first of four Nurse Practitioners to service the needs of Haliburton County.

(There will also eventually be Family Health Team services at the Minden site of Haliburton Highlands Health Services and Wilberforce.)

"This is a tremendous demonstration of local leadership," Smitherman told the collected crowd of healthcare professionals and county politicians as excavation of the site for the new medical centre dug in below him. "I know there's a lot to do but this is one step; it's a measurable step."

Community Care flourishes on 'contributions of love'

LANCE CROSSLEY

Staff Reporter

High-ranking government officials and a Canadian comedic legend were on hand to mark the 25th anniversary of Community Care at the Wigamog Inn Resort last Friday night.

The sold-out $100-a-plate gala had tables decked out in white linen, complimentary glasses of Chateau des Charmes reserve, and a buffet roast beef dinner. But the focal point of the night was praise for the organization that has been improving the quality of life for seniors in Haliburton County for the past quarter of a century.

"I feel that the investment in organizations like this across the breadth of our province are some of the very best investments we make in healthcare," said Minister of Health George Smitherman, who was unable to stay for the dinner due to an early appointment the following day in Kitchener.

Smitherman praised the volunteers, calling their work a "contribution of love" that allows the organization to flourish from the modest financial investments of government.

Local MP Barry Devolin began his speech by reflecting that in 1980, the inaugural year of the organization, which was called Haliburton County Home Support Services, he was a student at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School where issues of aging were from his mind. Devolin went on to say that there is probably no other organization in the county that is as volunteer driven as Community Care.

The evening's denouement came courtesy of comedian Don Harron, who assumed the stage as his famous alter ego Charlie Farquharson. After being introduced by emcee Jack Brezina – (who the comedian referred to as "Jack Brazier-Nuts") – Farquharson launched on an edgy stand-up routine that poked fun at everything from politics to old age. Rails End turns a corner

Editor

It's been a few years since the most frequently used adjective to describe what's happening at the Rails End Gallery was "exciting."

But the e-word was used more than once on Thursday night to describe the year that was and the year ahead at the Haliburton Highlands Guild of Fine Arts' annual general meeting.

"It's been an exciting year," said Donna Enright, chairperson of the board that has guided the gallery through one of its most challenging periods.

"It's exciting," said executive director Saskia Tentrees as she outlined what's ahead this fall.

After a period of turmoil between staff and the board, the Rails End has undergone both a physical and psychological transformation. A new foundation was built for the decaying historic train station that houses the gallery. It was also moved to drier ground in Head Lake Park. With the help of a consultant, the board has re-examined its role and responsibility and has decided that instead of falling under the management of the Guild, the gallery should be a separate entity with its own board.

Last year there was public protest when the gallery was lifted from its old foundation and appeared to be hovering over the village of Haliburton. But now that all the landscaping has been completed, there have been no negative comments about the renovated building.

The information centre, which had been housed in the caboose next door, is now in the gallery's former Waiting Room. It is wheelchair accessible, as the gallery will be once a capital fundraising program raises enough money for an interior elevator. The capital campaign will also pay to renovate and insulate the boxcar so that it can be used for year-round programming.

To get the gallery started on the process, it received an interest-free loan of $30,000 from the Haliburton County Development Corporation.

Enright was pleased to announce that gallery has wiped out its deficit and has already raised $25,000 towards its ultimate goal of $200,000.

"It's been a bumpy ride," she said of the past year, "but together we had a common vision and passion so we just kept working it out and moving it forward."

With a Trillium grant, the board re-evaluated its role and the role of the gallery to ensure that the gallery was still relevant to the community, as well as establish good financial controls.

"We have the potential to be sustainable in the long-term," she said.

The community has responded well, including the many artists who have made the Highlands home. "We've made a lot of effort to talk to people. Together we wanted to listen and get people's feedback."

More volunteers are needed to enhance future programming.

The gallery re-opened in July with the Haliburton School of the Arts Faculty Show and continued with the highly successful exhibit by local artist Michael Belmore. As part of the exhibit, called Stream, Belmore hosted walk-arounds with the public and local students.

On Saturday, a new show by local artists Mary Hastings and Jim Stewart opened, and it will be followed by an exhibit by Newfoundland artist David Rankin. When that show closes, the gallery will host a retrospective in celebration of its 25th anniversary. "It's the best of the past as we move into the future," Enright said.

The retrospective will be launched on November 18, when the gallery hosts its grand opening.

Joe Smith has been on the board for nine of those years. On Tuesday, he retired from official duties. Enright praised his consistent efforts and tenacity; "we could not have done it without him."

In thanks, she presented him with a watch to replace his old one which always goes off at 5 p.m. despite his repeated efforts to shut the annoying alarm off.

In saying goodbye, Smith said, "At times I thought I was crazy but I did enjoy it."

Stephen Patrick was welcomed as a new board member.

Enright was asked about the decision not to build a basement for the gallery as originally planned.

"Already the project was costing more than anticipated. It would have cost more than we could with confidence say that we could raise. The boxcar is our alternative," she said.

Board president Donna Enright presented retiring board member Joe Smith with a watch in appreciation of his nine years of service.

Plumbing and insulation will be added, as well, it's hoped, as some opportunities for natural light. "We think it's a nice alternative but now we just have to raise the money to make it happen."

Asked about the loss of space to the information centre, Tentrees says the partnership has worked very well. The two groups get along well and the information centre – not to mention the public washrooms inside the building – have combined to increase traffic in the gallery. The information centre closes after Thanksgiving and the gallery can use the space.

The annual general meeting is usually held in early summer. For a number of reasons this was not possible. At Thursday's meeting, they were just short of a quorum of 25 so no motions were passed. Enright noted that many artists who would normally attend were busily preparing for the weekend's Studio Tour and she promised never to hold the AGM at such an awkward time again.

Performing artists go back to school

Ontario Arts Council funding lets students discover their inner clown and dancer

LANCE CROSSLEY

Staff Reporter

Haliburton County schools will get an added influx of art programming courtesy of local residents Shelley King and Daniela Pagliaro. Each woman was recently awarded $6,300 as part of the Ontario Arts Council's popular Artists in Education program.

The money will cover 85 per cent of the cost for six weeks of art programming, with the other 15 per cent being covered by participating schools in the area. The six weeks will be divided according to how many schools participate and how each artist plans to construct her program.

King will be teaching clowning in the classroom and intends to package it in one-week courses. It's an opportunity she wants to capitalize on so that children can develop their creativity.

"We all have a clown inside of us; it'll be up to them to find out who their clown is," says King, who is targeting Grades 3 to 6. "I'm hoping they will find something in clowning that will help them not only from a creative standpoint, but skills they can apply for other parts of their lives."

The Wilberforce resident has been clowning for the past 15 years and has run clowning workshops for both adults and children. It started out as a way to complement her husband's income and spend time with kids, but it quickly evolved into a life-long passion. King says that the kids who participate in her program this year will participate in all aspects of clowning, from developing papier mache props to performing drama improvisations.

"By the end of the week they will be performing these skits either for other classes, or, I'm hoping we can do performing for seniors."

Pagliaro will be introducing contemporary dance to the classroom for students in Grades 4 to high school. Contemporary dance is often a misunderstood term and is sometimes falsely associated with images of hip-hop dancers thrusting their pelvises forward. In reality, Pagliaro says, it developed in the early 20th Century as movement that wanted to evolve past traditional dance forms such as ballet.

"Contemporary dance is more experimental," explains Pagliaro. "It's more human in my mind. You can actually create dance that is art and is saying something. You can get an idea or concept across."

Structure and improvisational exercises will be the focus in Pagliaro's program. And as in King's case, her students will be learning the entire process from creating to producing their work. A few students may even be recruited to participate in professional shows Pagliaro organizes.

Pagliaro enrolled at the Canadian Children's Dance Theatre from ages 11 to 18, where she remembers doing her school studies backstage until midnight and working 20-hour weekends. She continued her development by taking the professional training program at the School of Toronto Dance.

While this is King's first time receiving the educational grant, it will be Pagliaro's fourth. Both women want their programming to have more than a temporary effect, and so will be providing teachers with resources and follow-up activities.

The grant aims to complement Ontario's school curriculum through a deepened approach with the art sector. The six weeks can take place at any time during the school year, all at once or spread out over the course of the year.

A fresh start

THE NEW SENSE OF OPTIMISM and vitality at the Rails End Gallery is certainly refreshing. Over the past few years, the gallery seemed mired in personnel problems, which seemed to reach crisis proportions when it was sued for wrongful dismissal. The community didn't exactly turn its back on the gallery, but there was a feeling that it would have to clean up its own house before anyone would accept an invitation to come and visit.

The new board appears to have done just that. It's cleared up its deficit, has hired eager and competent staff and seems more inclined to let the staff do their job while it concentrates on ensuring the long-term viability of the gallery. While maintaining high standards, the gallery is also embracing the local arts community, encouraging local applications for shows and getting as excited about the talent to be found within our borders as it is about the artists it brings in from away.

All of Haliburton can be grateful if indeed the years of controversy are now behind us. The gallery is such a symbol of this county's rich history and the role that the arts have come to play in our present and future. With its perch above the scenic Head Lake Park, it's a vital expression of what makes the Highlands such a vibrant place to live and visit. Combined with the amazing strength of Fleming College's growing arts programs, and a fragile but significant foundation of artists who are making their living here, the gallery is the arts community's public face. And we all need to put our best face forward.

It's time for the community to respond. Leave the cynicism in the past and give the gallery the second chance it deserves. Sure, the honeymoon may be brief, but there also is the strong possibility that the relationship may be an enduring one. We won't know if we don't try.

Healthcare's future

Karen Dockrill is a pediatrician who loves the Highlands, especially Kushog Lake, where she and her husband have a cottage. She is also an advocate of patient-centred healthcare. She encourages people to get involved with their own healthcare decisions. That means conscientiously adopting lifestyles that improve health and reduce the risk of illness, but it also requires becoming more involved with the decisions that healthcare professionals make once we do become ill. It requires a patient taking on more responsibility, but it also helps to ensure that the decisions that are made are the right ones.

The development of a Family Health Team in Haliburton County certainly seems to be the right idea at the right time. In their own separate ways, Haliburton Highlands Health Services, doctors in Haliburton and the municipality of Dysart et al have all been working towards a more sustainable way of providing healthcare in Haliburton. It's a method that the province has obviously endorsed. Through such partnerships, the Highlands was able to get funding to have one of the first Family Health Teams in Ontario.

As well as bringing services together under one roof, the team also allows for the arrival of more healthcare professionals. Last week the province announced funding for the county's first Nurse Practitioner, who will take on some of the non-emergency roles that make local doctors' lives so busy. Three more have been promised.

In Minden the Family Health Team will take up residence at the Minden HHHS site, which was built to accommodate more services than it was funded for. The foresight of local healthcare planners has once again been invaluable as we move towards having a integrated and fully-functioning local healthcare system.

Taking the taste out of food

FOOD SHOPPING is truly a common activity, unless we are lucky enough to be able to provide most everything ourselves. Although once upon a time buying from others rather than producing for ourselves seemed like a dream come true, many now wonder. From grower to consumer is such a complexity of middlemen that only rarely does the slogan 'customer satisfaction' live up to its billing. Not often does the public's input have much influence.

Customer satisfaction has long been touted as the goal of large grocery chains. One must ask just who is this customer that is receiving such satisfaction? Two examples, the journeys of two foods, tells the tale of the end user's frustration, not satisfaction: a box of frozen spinach and a basket of cherries. For the first, I was the customer; for the second, it was a T.V. chef.

When opened the spinach was pathetic - a sad blob of ice with mainly withered dried leaves. Of the three boxes available it had felt the best!. Such is not an uncommon occurrence. Products labelled frozen might better be stamped re-frozen. Why so frequently? Well, so I have been told, the frozen foods travel in refrigerator trucks that keep them frozen for the necessary time as long as the days are not sweltering and/or there are no traffic jams to delay delivery.

Who here is the satisfied customer? Not the store managers, who must take this now inferior product if they expect to fill their shelves. Certainly not the customers who receive these goods. Possibly along the way to the grocery's freezer - trucking company, packaging manufacturers etc. - are satisfied because they have a reasonable return for their services rendered, but not the forsaken end user.

The logic, or more aptly called, myth, is that consumers can vote with their feet and their pocketbooks and go elsewhere, and this will put pressure on these huge companies to improve. That's not often an option in rural areas since most grocery chains offer similar wares; not often either in cities where the time-consuming inconvenience of comparative shopping too often outweighs the desire for a better product.

Often the product choice is determined long before the final consumer comes to select from the offerings available. The basket of cherries. A Toronto chef demonstrating a cherry-based dessert commented that she had searched for Ontario cherries in season. She could only get those from Washington State. Home grown ones were being shipped elsewhere.

This is not a new phenomenon. When I lived in California I often visited my mother in Peterborough in the wintertime. On her grocery shelves was lots of iceberg lettuce from California. They were cheaper here, though less fresh than I could buy, when it was infrequently available, and I lived only 100 or so kms from the largest lettuce growing area in the country. Again, I suppose, many of the agents along the way, as products pass from one group to the next, were satisfied, but not us.

In the city suburbs people are beginning to vote with their feet and their pocketbooks. Small family-owned grocery stores are popping up in various suburbs. Memories of the old corner store, before we became enthusiasts of the 'bigger the better' syndrome, are becoming realities once more. In such stores customer satisfaction is the engine that drives the enterprise.

Given time, if typical patterns prevail we, in rural area will follow lead of the cities. 'Til then we will make do with our somewhat less than satisfactory choices, our often travel-wearied goods, and envy those who still can produce some of their own food.

Psycho Hotline

MY FIVE-YEAR-OLD daughter Carmen watches too much television, which wouldn't be nearly so bad if she was actually paying attention to what she's watching. But I'm pretty sure she is not. And more than anything, this explains her announcement at dinner a couple of nights ago. The one in which she proclaimed that she would be opening up a psycho hotline.

"Don't you mean psychic hotline?" I asked, perhaps a bit too nervously. Call me protective, but I didn't want her mixing with the wrong crowd.

"I knew you'd ask that question, Dad," she stated gleefully while doing some sort of reading on her brother's bean salad.

"Well then? What is it?"

"Psycho, psychic, what's the difference?" she asked as she brandished her fork wildly in the air and stabbed a carrot.

"Apparently not much," I replied.

As a father of three, I've pretty well been through it all before, so I didn't exactly panic when, later, Carmen called me up to her darkened room to do a "psycho reading." She motioned me to sit across from her and her crystal ball, which also happened to double as a snow globe, the kind you turn over and back so that you can have the pleasure of watching six feet of snow bury a miniature village.

"Well, Carmen..."

"Madame Carmen," she corrected.

"Uh, sorry. So what interesting and important things await me in the future?" I snickered.

Suddenly, she closed her eyes and swayed back and forth. Then she opened her eyes wide and gazed deeply into the crystal ball, which happened to be in the midst of a terrible cold front.

"You will grow hair and it will cover all the bald spots," she announced in a distant, detached voice.

"Really?" I replied.

"Yes, but it will be on your ears," she continued. "Mom predicted that this morning, too."

I got up to leave.

"The crystal ball sees all things," she announced firmly.

I started walking towards the door.

"Someone will ask you an easy question," she chanted.

"Something, even you can answer."

"Yeah, right," I said, as I left.

"You'll be back," she said knowingly.

I had just rounded the corner when I saw her mother assembling the vacuum cleaner. I quickly ducked back into Madame Carmen's Psycho Studio, just as Carol called my name.

"I knew you'd be back! I just knew it!" Madame Carmen squealed. "Boy, this psycho stuff sure is great!"

"Yes, yes," I replied as I hid under a psycho blanket.

"Want me to read your palms?" she said.

"Uh, no," I replied. "Just pretend I'm not here."

"Mom!"

I thrust my palm forward from under the blanket. "Read away," I whispered, "but be quiet."

"I see a life of indentured servitude," she announced.

"Wha... indentured servitude?"

"I don't know what that means but I heard it on a television show."

"Indentured servitude? Oh my goodness," I said, panicking. The sound of my wife testing the vacuum echoed in the distance.

"Dad, are you cold?"

"No," I said.

"Then why are you shivering?"

"No reason," I said, as I ducked under the blanket. "Just pretend I'm not here."

"Steven!" Carol cried, as she revved up the vacuum in a most menacing fashion.

"Dad, mom's calling you."

Suddenly, Carol's shadow crossed the doorway and before I knew it, Carmen's prediction - the one about indentured servitude - became reality. Half an hour later, after an undeserved and lengthy stint on a vacuum cleaning chain gang, I finally sat down to contemplate my future for the rest of the afternoon.

That's when my little psycho approached. The first thing she did was look at my ears. "Hey, I think the other prediction is happening too," she said proudly. "Boy, I'm two for two."

Now, I'm not one to shatter the hopes and aspirations of my offspring - I figure having me as a dad is tough enough - but I did think that maybe I should provide Carmen with a healthy dose of reality.

"Carm, you're not really a psycho, I mean psychic, are you?"

"Well, I kind of am," she answered. "But only on Tuesdays."

"Did you know today is Sunday?" I asked.

"Of course, I did. What kind of psycho wouldn't know what day it was?"

Just then her mother walked in carrying a broom and dust pan and asked, "Is today October 2nd or 3rd?"

It was far too easy, so I let it go. And then I picked up a catalogue and started pricing ear trimmers.

pic of the past

It was quite typical for a boy in the Haliburton Highlands to grow up with an axe in his hand, writes Gelert historian Gren Schrader. It was also the duty of a boy to help catch the "buzzard" being prepared for the dinner table. In this photo, 11-year-old Irvin Hoyle seems up to the task. Born in 1910, he was the son of Albert Hoyle and Margaret Newell of Gelert. Our thanks to Mr. Schrader for sharing this with us just in time for Thanksgiving dinner.

letters to the editor

Property assessment is a money grab by provincial gov't

The following letter was first sent to Laurie Scott, MPP Haliburton-Victoria-Brock.

Dear Ms. Scott,

Re: Ontario's Current Value Assessment (CVA)

Currently, I am the owner of a water front property in the Haliburton area. It has come to my attention through the local newspaper that my property taxes will significantly increase.

I fully understand that as a property owner I have the responsibility of contributing to public coffers, but the concern I am voicing is for the formula used and how the amount is arrived at.

It is not my intention to suggest the complete abolition of property taxes as I am aware of the need and purpose of the collection of such monies. I can see the relationship between services provided such as garbage collection, fire and police protection with the amount of tax assessed.

At present, I do not use garbage collection, water treatment and access my property by a

Forest plan can be found locally

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to Highlands East brief reports, pg. 17, Sept. 27/05 Echo. Under the topic Forest Plan, Councillor Suzanne Partridge states she is upset that residents must drive to Peterborough or Toronto to see the proposed plan. She goes on to say the plan should be available here.

The plan is available here, at the Bancroft and Minden Ministry of Natural Resources offices. Residents are welcome to go in and review the plan or they may phone for an after hours appointment.

However, as a local citizen committee member who has volunteered many hours for the last six years, along with the rest of the dedicated committee members, I am compelled to say that we held an open house on March 23, 2005 in Bancroft for five hours with very few attending. Five very expensive ads went into five different local area newspapers advertising our "Invitation to Participate" along with many single invitations going out including one to each municipal office.

Thank you Councillor Partridge for your concern.

Paramedics never arrive at roadside emergency

To the Editor:

This is in response to your article of Sept. 20, on page 3: "There is still some resistance to calling 911 for medical emergencies in Highlands East".

In the story Fire Chief Don Middleton recommended calling 911 even if the Fire Department might get there quicker.

Let me tell you what happened to me.

On July 21, my wife and I were on our way to Haliburton along Glamorgan Rd. we ran upon a man on the left hand shoulder of the road way. His car was in the ditch beside a small rock cut.

I stopped to lend assistance and discovered that he was having medical troubles. I stopped a passing car and asked the driver to call 911 as I thought the man has having a stroke.

He left and later told me he had done what I had asked him to do.

We waited for one and a half hours and no one showed up. E.M.S. failed to come to our help or the Highland East Fire Department. and we were in Highlands East.

With my wife's help I managed to get his car out of the ditch and put him into it and drove him to the Haliburton Hospital.

To add insult to injury when I wheeled this man into the E.R. someone reminded me that I had to wait my turn.

EMS failed us and the man who needed them.

I don't know what the track record is so far for 911 but Mr. Middleton should know that there is a down side. When you dial 911 something should happen.

Carl Dewey,
Gooderham

Editor's note: The driver who phoned 911 did so from a land line quite far from the accident. The 911 dispatcher sent the ambulance to the vicinity of the house where the call was made. The paramedics drove past the house but when they didn't come upon the accident, they turned around. This is a reminder that when people phone 911 they should have an accurate description of where the emergency is.

Tax shouldn't be based solely on assessment

private road maintained by a cottage association. I presumed that the more elaborate the services, the more tax paid, but in this unusual scheme, the two are independent of each other. It appears that the property tax is based solely on assessed value.

Unfortunately, assessing a property at market value is unfair when the value suddenly and irrationally escalates.

Given the current circumstance, it is possible to see a doubling or tripling of property value from one assessment to another. increases are never welcome although increments are to be expected, but such a large discrepancy creates hardship for the property owners.

This new assessment has the air of a money grab by the provincial government against the hard working person or those who have worked hard and now are retired. It should come as no surprise that I, like many other residents, am opposed to any further taxation that will be unjustly calculated.

I look forward to hearing from you on this matter.

Sincerely,
Linda D. Ewles,
Toronto

Wilberforce cyclist maintains his rank

To the Editor:

As a follow up to the story Pedal to the Medals on cyclist Joe Cox, above, in the Aug. 16/05 issue of the Echo I thought you might be interested to know that after seven gruelling races, (over terrain most of us would hesitate to walk, let alone careen over on a bicycle), Joe has managed to hang on to the second place position he established early in the season and has finished second in Ontario for his division.

With this kind of accomplishment in his first year of competition we look forward to seeing what his future holds. Some day the winner of the Tour de France may very well hail from the Highlands of Haliburton.

Minister of Health George Smitherman called the work of Community Care volunteers a "contribution of love".

Charlie Farquharson aims barbs at receptive audience

dent George Bush's misguided invasion of Iraq, he told that crowd that next month "[Bush] plans to invade Egypt to ward off the West Nile virus."

He also wasn't afraid to ridicule the senior demographic that populated most of the crowd, including himself: "I'm still in good shape. I get up every morning at 4 a.m. Mind you, I'm back in bed at 4:02." "I think that get 'getting lucky' is getting a parking spot at the mall."

Farquharson appeared to have brought the performance to a premature close after audience members became preoccupied with a woman who had collapsed and required medical attention.

Jeff Leal, MPP for Peterborough, told the organization that it should be proud of what it has accomplished.

"It's clear to me that you believe, as we do, that seniors have the right to live independently in safety and security, with the respect and dignity they all deserve," said Leal.

Local MPP Laurie Scott kept it brief for the audience, saying Community Care is an ideal example of how seniors can stay in their homes longer, despite the challenges presented by a rural riding.

Community Care founding member Ev Stata wrote a poem for the occasion to encapsulate what the spirit of volunteerism: "...Yes it's great to have that assurance/There's someone to look after your needs/And all those community care volunteers/Someday heaven will reward them for their good deeds."

But perhaps the most impassioned speech of the night came from fellow founding member Doris McCann, who after being helped to the microphone, spoke emphatically about the organization's evolution and the importance of community.

"It's nice to know that everybody will take part in helping those people who are in most need," said McCann. "And I find that in Haliburton this is really predominant. Everybody seems to think of everybody else - and that's a nice thing."

McCann received the lone standing ovation of the evening for her words.

Comedian Don Harron (a.k.a. Charlie Farquharson) had the crowd laughing with his edgy humour on politics and old age.

Art lovers take to the road

There were throngs of people who drove the 18th Annual Haliburton County Studio Tour. With 22 studios and more than 29 artists' work on display, Tshoppers could choose from traditional to contemporary art in a variety of media such as fabric art, pottery, jewellery, paintings and wood work. The tour continues on Thanksgiving weekend and runs from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Host galleries for the tour are The Ethel Curry Galler in Haliburton on Maple Street and the Agnes Jamieson Gallery in Minden, over the bridge on Main Street.

Highlands East Reeve Keith Tallman and Jim Harrison introduce themselves to Health Minister George Smitherman on Friday in Haliburton.

First nurse practitioner approved

New team member can carry caseload of up to 1,000 patients

Minister of Health George Smitherman announced the approval of funding for the first of four Nurse Practitioner positions with the Haliburton Highlands Family Health Team when he visited the Highlands on Friday.

The Minister was joined by members of the Family Health Team Steering Committee, Family Health Network physicians and community partners to celebrate this critical first step towards improving access to healthcare for Minden, Haliburton and surrounding areas.

"This funding is great news. The addition of a Nurse Practitioner to the Family Health Team will begin to address the difficulties that many residents of Haliburton County have in accessing consistent primary healthcare," says Dr. Scott Coles, chair of the Haliburton Highlands Family Health Team Steering Committee.

The funding will allow the Family Health Team to add its first interdisciplinary team member.

Nurse Practitioners are registered nurses who have completed additional education and have an extended scope of practice.

In collaboration with a physician, a nurse practitioner is an ideal health professional to provide wellness care and check-ups, stable chronic disease management, typical illness care (ie. ear and respiratory infections, certain joint and muscle injuries), health promotion and education.

The Nurse Practitioner can independently order diagnostic tests, write prescriptions and diagnose illness within a well-defined scope of practice. When care outside of this scope is required, the Nurse Practitioner will consult with or refer to a physician for the needed skills and expertise.

Once a Nurse Practitioner has been recruited and selected for this position, the successful candidate will work closely with the physicians of the Family Health Network to establish collaborative team relations, policies and procedures.

When this introductory phase has been completed the Nurse Practitioner will work to improve access to primary care for the residents of Haliburton County.

As a member of the Family Health Team, the Nurse Practitioner provides service to patients that are rostered, or signed up, to a physician of the Family Health Team.

A Nurse Practitioner can carry a caseload of patients that range anywhere from 200 to 1,000 individuals, depending on the type of services that are provided.

As the Family Health Team development progresses, additional health professionals will be added. As new team members join, more patients can sign up and access the services provided by the team. Once the team is complete, its mission is to provide every resident with access to comprehensive, timely primary healthcare.

Health unit wants to prevent beach closures

The local board of health wants all levels of government to come together to discuss how to best protect area beaches from being polluted by a variety of sources, including waterfowl.

At a recent meeting of the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit, board members agreed to invite representatives from the Ministry of Natural Resources and the Canadian Wildlife Federation to a future meeting to discuss ways to prevent future beach closures caused by pollution, including waste from waterfowl.

"As a board of health, we are responsible for monitoring recreational water quality, but we can't address this on our own," said Ric McGee. "We need to be more proactive with the upper levels of government and get them involved in this issue."

The Health Unit follows protocols set by the province for testing and posting area beaches if E.coli levels are higher than a level considered acceptable.

Shovel in hand, Health Minister George Smitherman joined local politicians and healthcare providers in celebrating the construction of a new medical centre next to the Haliburton Hospital. It will house local doctors who are joining the Family Health Team, which will bring together an array of healthcare services.

Province divests some responsibilities to communities

to give more decision-making control to communities is the establishment of Local Integrated Health Teams. Foster Loucks, the former CEO of HHHS, has been chosen to lead the one that stretches from Haliburton to Scarborough.

"Both are about community," Smitherman said. "They're designed to change the dynamics of the conversation to the idea we're all in it together."

As head of a ministry that thrives on acronyms such as FHTs and LIHNs, Smitherman says we have to move towards a language that involves the patient as well as the professionals. Since the province has only a finite amount of money to spend on healthcare, the public must also be involved in the discussion on how best to spend the money. And that discussion, does not just take place at Queen's Park.

"To get to the root of the problem is the word community," he said. "We need to build up community resources...."

"We're taking the power out of our hands and putting it in the competent hands of Foster and Ontarians."

Other community investments include resources that are given to health units to promote healthy lifestyles. "If you keep people healthy we can save ourselves the extra health costs of institutional care."

After stopping by the medical centre construction site, Smitherman met informally with politicians and healthcare professionals at the Wigamog Inn before addressing the gala dinner in celebration of the 25th anniversary of Haliburton County Community Care.

Community Care all about bringing care home

October is Community Support Month

Community support services are vital in keeping people healthy and where they most prefer to be: at home. And it's time to celebrate. October 2005 is Community Support Month in Ontario. It's all co-ordinated by Community Care Haliburton County a member agency of the Ontario Community Support Association.

"Community support's all about bringing care home," says Donna MacDonald, executive director of Community Care.

"It's the less expensive alternative in health care today but it's in trouble. Everyone's got questions, the need is growing, funds aren't enough and the population is aging. But we've got the track record and we're the solution."

For Community Support Month Haliburton Highlands Quilt Guild has donated beautiful hand-made placentas to all the Meals on Wheels clients.

Community Care is also holding a fundraiser, the Fall Dessert and Coffee Fashion Show on October 23 at the Wigamog Inn Resort.

Volunteers are at the heart of everything Community Care does. Community Support Month is the time to volunteer. Volunteering to help your neighbours builds your spirit and our community. To get involved, contact Roxanne Casey at 457-2941 or visit www.communitycare-haliburton.com.

Community Care Haliburton County provides services to senior and adults with disabilities and their caregivers. The services provided at Community Care are: Meals on Wheels, Wheels to Meals, Emergency Response Systems, Home Help & Home Maintenance Social Recreation, In-Home Respite, Friendly Visiting, Telephone Security Checks and Transportation to Appointments.

The services are delivered by eight staff and 170 well-trained volunteers. All are committed to friendly, caring and personalized care that responds directly to clients needs.

40 days of purpose comes to Haliburton

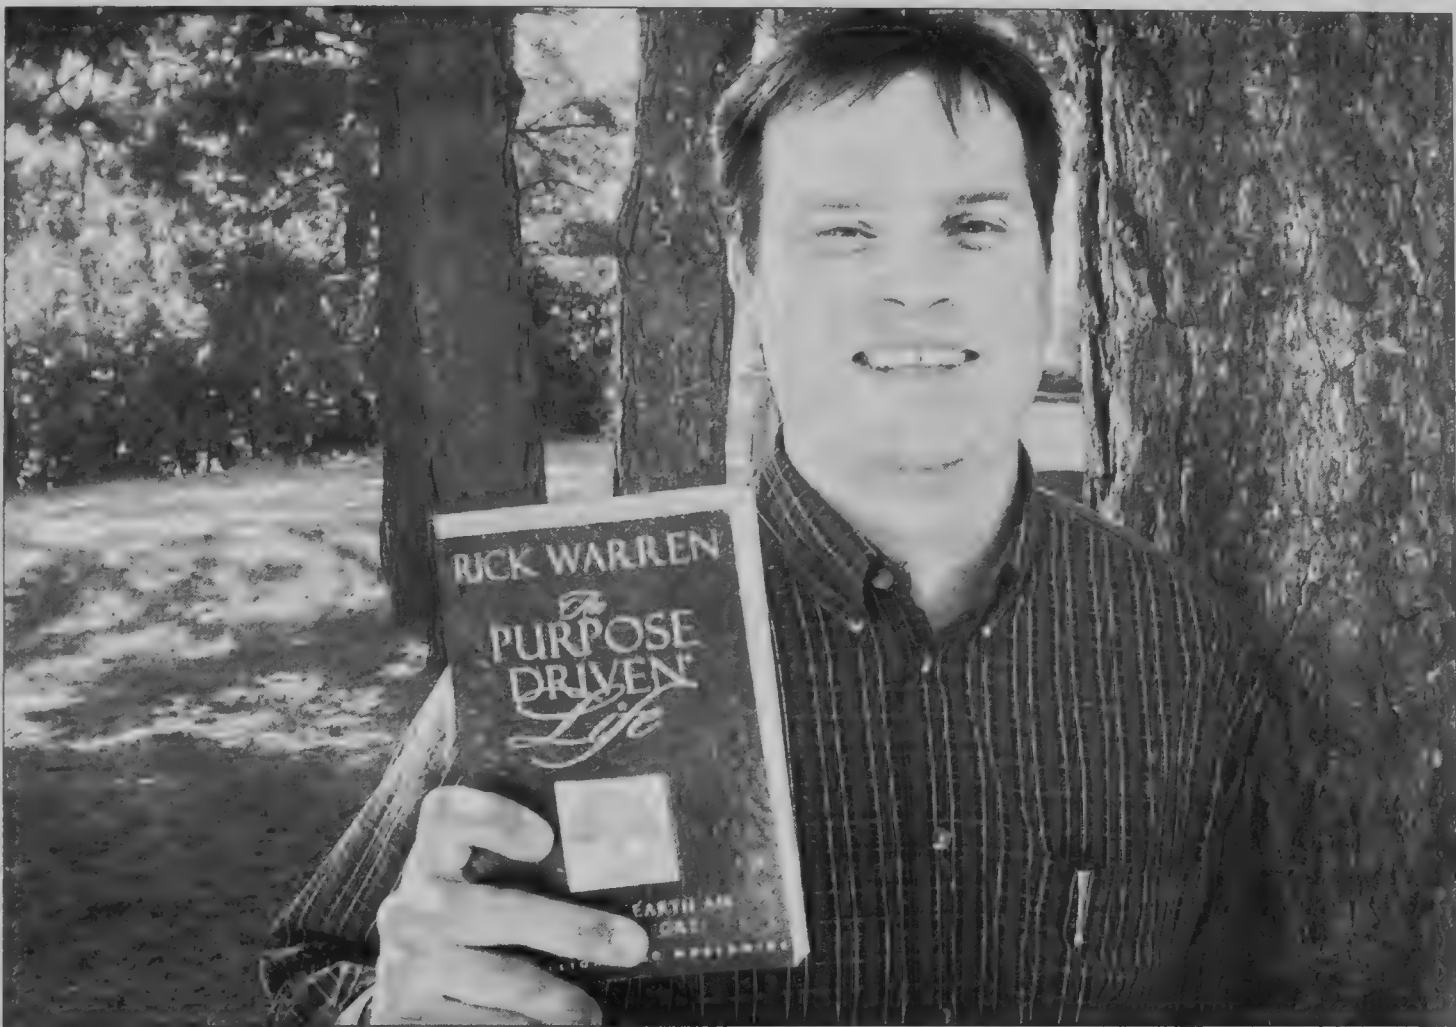

LANCE CROSSLEY
Staff Reporter

Ever wonder what the point of it all is? If so, you may want to explore an initiative by Lakeside Baptist Church, which is launching a 40-day spiritual growth campaign based on Rick Warren's best-selling book The Purpose Driven Life.

"The idea is to get everybody in our church – and invite people from our community – to participate and have everybody on the same page for 40 days," says associate pastor David Bretzlaff. "To have everybody going through the same material and focused on the same themes."

Warren, whose book has sold 20 million copies worldwide, is the founding pastor of California's Saddleback Church, a mega-church that attracts more than 20,000 people a week. The book itself has become a movement of its own, with reportedly 10 per cent of America's churches having participated in Warren's program.

take up the spiritual journey after its pastors attended Saddleback conference that was promoting the idea. Bretzlaff says the book's subtitle – What on earth am I here for? – serves as the central point of discussion for the program.

"It's for everybody," explains Bretzlaff. "So anybody who has asked that question would definitely enjoy it and get some value out of it."

The 40-day journey begins October 15 at Lakeside, where attendees will watch a video sermon by the author and make ice cream sundaes.

The campaign, says Bretzlaff, has three main elements to it. The first is for participants to read one of the 40 chapters every day. Secondly, every Sunday service at Lakeside will celebrate and elaborate on the book's themes. And lastly, various church members will host weekly discussions for small groups of people where readers can discuss what they are getting out of the book. Among the daily themes in the book are titles such as Seeing life from God's view, Developing your Friendship with God and What matters most. The program comes to an end on November 27.

For Bretzlaff, the book serves as a practical guide for developing a sense of mission in one's life.

"It's not high-falutin' theology of a monk in a high tower," says Bretzlaff. "It's very earthy and very sensible. The way Rick writes, it's almost as if he's just talking to you. It's not over your head."

Rail trail symposium October 16

scape on either side. The conversion of rails to trails has been a significant force to ensure the preservation of wetlands worldwide, by keeping these corridors intact. In any country, you could expect to experience an ever-changing vista of native flora and fauna by traveling the rail trails.

Recognizing that rail trails deliver a reliable blend of steady long-distant riding or hiking through natural scenery, punctuated by remnants of settlement and railway history, and intriguing natural and man-made landscapes, an ardent breed of enthusiast seeks them out. Because the railways often followed rivers, to follow an easy grade, and modern highways tend to be engineered closer to straight lines, rail trails often find themselves a long way from noisy traffic. This is the case in a couple of spots on the Haliburton County Rail Trail. Between Ritchie Falls and Gelert, and particularly between Geeza Rd and Howland Junction, where there is a small lake with granite outcroppings and white pines – it is utterly quiet. I urge anyone who wants to earn their turkey dinner, to walk, ride a horse or a bike, South from Geeza Rd, take a picnic, and your friends and family and enjoy that peace.

This is the vision I had when I heard there was to be a Rail Trail Master Plan way back in August 2003. We have all the same social and physical characteristics as the inhabitants of communities that have these wonderful trails. Why wouldn't we embrace these possibilities? It's a noble gesture to say it should be for everyone, but motorized vehicles are identified as a deterrent to active recreation in surveys by Health Canada.

Rail trails through scenic countryside are popular with the $124 million domestic cycling market, and the new breed of active traveler that respects nature, represents an affluent demographic. With the exception of the Lochlin Flats, where the trail could benefit from a screen of trees between it and the highway, the varied marsh, forest and rocky scenery on the HCRT is world class. The wildlife habitat is rich, and just what international visitors imagine when they think of Canada. I quote here from TIAC, Tourism Industry Association of Canada's code of ethics and guidelines, developed in partnership with Parks Canada: "Sustainable tourism actively fosters appreciation and stewardship of the natural, cultural and historic resources and special places by local residents, the tourism industry, governments and visitors. It is tourism which is viable over the long term because it results in a net benefit for the social, economic, natural and cultural environments of the area in which it takes place."

I am proud to stand up for this alternative for the future of this County owned asset, that truly would be for everyone. Whether you agree, disagree or would like an afternoon out that offers a variety of stimulating information, you are welcome to join us. If you would like to learn more beforehand, try looking at these: railtrails.org, trailsandgreenways.org, sustrans.org.uk, railtrailsaustralia.org and the first site that comes up when you google Ontario Rail Trails.

And our next move is?

Now you can tattle on illegal hunters

The Ontario government is launching a phone-tips line to report illegal hunting and fishing activities.

"Ethical hunters, anglers and members of the public can be the eyes and ears of the ministry and can report resource abuse anytime of the day or night," said Minister of Natural Resources David Ramsay. "This will better protect all our resources and boost our enforcement efforts."

The toll-free tips line, 1-877-TIPS-MNR (847-7667) operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week, year-round. Anyone who sees violations involving fish and wildlife, forests, parks, aggregates and public lands is asked to call the line and report it. The information will be used by conservation officers in their investigations.

The slogan for the program is "Help Protect Our Natural Resources." The program expands on the ministry's successful Moose Watch phone line which operated over the past five years during moose hunting season.

Each year the Ministry of Natural Resources lays between 8,000 and 10,000 charges for natural resource violations. Our natural resources are more fragile than you know. Abuse of our natural resources reduces opportunities for everyone and threatens the future sustainability of the resource.

Natural resource violations include any illegal activity against Ontario's fish and wildlife, forests, parks, aggregate resources, and public lands, such as:

- The illegal sale of species at risk or wildlife or animal parts
- Fishing or hunting out-of-season
- Taking more game than allowed
- Night hunting or shooting from a roadway
- Unauthorized shoreline alteration or dumping waste on Crown land
- Illegally removing sand, gravel or Crown timber from public lands
- Having fires in restricted fire zones or without a permit, and
- Illegal activities in provincial parks and protected areas.

A member of the public who sees or suspects resource abuse should safely take note of as much information as possible and call 1-877-TIPS-MNR (847-7667). Conservation officers will use the information to investigate. The TIPS-MNR line is not an emergency response line.

Helpful information includes:

- Vehicle licence plate number, make and model
- Date and time of day
- Approximate location (road, lake, street address, landmarks)
- Details about the suspected activity
- Description of any people involved in the incident.

People can also report natural resource violations to Crime Stoppers, a long-time partner with the Ministry of Natural Resources, at 1-800-222-8477.

Remembering Murray Agnew

Murray Agnew's presence loomed large in everyone's minds on Sunday afternoon when hundreds of people gathered for his memorial service at the Lloyd Watson Centre in Wilberforce. Murray's widow, Aileen, and daughter Cathy, below, greeted everyone at the door to share a memory or two. During a luncheon prepared by the ladies of St. Margaret's Anglican Church, a slide show of photos prepared by his granddaughter, Jodi Rupnow, filled the stage. The service, led with joy and good humour by family friend the Rev. David Watson, included a ceremony by the Wilberforce Legion, above, and the Masons, below left, at which Murray's apron was retired by Worthy Patron Jim Lee. Following a moving tribute by Cathy, the Gentlemen of Song came out of retirement to honour their friend and fellow singer and rouse the crowd with a powerful rendition of The Battle Hymn of the Republic.

To celebrate the life of Murray Agnew (1924-2005), to share memories of his life and to extend condolences to Eileen and all the Agnew family, hundreds came on Sunday, October 2, 2005.

They assembled in Wilberforce at the community hall, the Lloyd Watson Centre, beautifully converted into a chapel-like place by the Agnew family. Murray would have appreciated a gathering in his honour being held at the community hall. He was a community man as well as a family person; he was of the community; in the community; he was the community for most of his 81 years. His community was Wilberforce and far beyond the village. And people came from "Murray's community," near and far, to pay their respects and to spend time with the Agnew family and each other. Members of the Agnew family were there to share of themselves and their love and respect for a husband, a father, a grandfather, a great-great grandfather, a father-in-law, an uncle and a family patriarch.

The fine arrangement of photographs, certificates, letters, memory messages, as well as sports, Legion and Mason/Shriner regalia recalled for mourners the depth and breadth of the interests and passions of Murray's life. An amazing slide presentation with captions that further shared of his life was projected as friends and family shared memorabilia and refreshments.

The formal services began with the procession of the colour party of the Legion Branch 624 Wilberforce, prayers and the singing of Abide With Me. Many members of the Masonic Lodge and Shriners paid tribute to Murray with a solemn ceremony that included prayers, the reading of all the positions he had held and honours received and a final salute by each member. Dave Watson, who emceed the service, recalled Murray's many involvements in the community. Cathy Agnew presented a wonderful tribute to her father on behalf of Veterans honoured at appreciation dinner

Wilberforce Ladies Auxiliary put on a tasty roast beef dinner

community news

wilberforce legion br. 64

Mel Smith

On the evening of Sept. 19, the Royal Canadian Legion Douglas C. Hatch Branch 64 Wilberforce hosted a veterans appreciation dinner.

Wilberforce is blessed to have so many veterans in our small Legion to share their first-hand stories with us. They were thanked for their sacrifice and wished continued good health and happiness 'til the Legion's next get-together.

This is the Year of the Veteran, so don't miss an opportunity to thank any of our Legion veterans or other veterans living in our community for the freedom we enjoy today.

There are only six Canadian World War I veterans still alive and our World War II veterans are getting fewer and fewer. Show your appreciation! The Ladies Auxiliary and volunteers put on a lovely roast beef dinner for our veterans and executive followed by a sing-song and dancing.

The Veterans Dinner put on by the Ladies Auxiliary was a great success, as was the rest of Legion Week. I personally would like to thank everyone involved.

On October 2 a memorial was held for one of our veterans, Donald Murray Agnew, at the Lloyd Watson Centre. The centre was filled with people from far and wide. In attendance there were many Legion members, many Lodge members, relatives and friends.

The Paul Adams Cribbage Tournament on October 2

was won by Loraine Hughes and Joan Harris. Congratulations!

October 8. This is our Annual Turkey Shoot at Popcorn Pond, just one mile south of Wilberforce. 12 Gauge and 4:10 Shot Guns. Win yourself a ham or turkey for Thanksgiving. Ladies are welcome. For more information call 448-2221.

October 9. The Ladies Auxiliary Branch 624 would like to invite you join them at the Legion, between the hours of 9:00 A.M. and 12:00 noon, for an all you can eat brunch. Everyone welcome. Come on out and join us and bring friends.

Adults: $6; Children 6 to 10: $3; Children under 6 free.

October 16. Our annual horseshoe tournament and barbecue. $5 per person. This event has been a success for several years now.

Don't forget:

Tuesday October 4: The Executive meeting at 7:00 P.M.

Wednesday October 5: This is Open Darts Night, Everyone Welcome.

Thursday October 6: Euchre at 1:00 P.M. at the Branch. Also Euchre on Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. at Harcourt Community Centre.

Saturday October 8: The weekly meat draw, which is also a great success.

Come on out and join in the fun.

Free fun for wee tykes

What do puppets, magicians and reptiles have in common?

These and other exciting hands-on experiences will be presented by the early Intervention Network at the Annual Haliburton County Family Fun Day.

This year's event will take place at J.D. Hodgson Elementary School on Saturday, October 15 from 9:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Families with children aged birth to six years are invited to participate free of charge and discover the variety of family focused services that Haliburton County has to offer.

Attendees will experience a morning full of entertainment (live magician, puppet show and live reptile exhibit), meaningful activities (covering five different age groups), fun (door prizes, draws and give-aways) and food (healthy snacks and lunch for the whole family). Parking at the school is free. Transportation will also be provided at no cost from Minden and Wilberforce.

the family. She spoke of his love and dedication to his family and to his work in the store and the post office. His love of sports, especially hockey, as a player, coach, supporter and cheerleader, was a constant in his life.

Likewise, thousands of hours and miles were clocked (mostly evenings) to keep his commitments to his beloved Masonic Lodge meetings across the province. Apparently Eileen didn't have to worry about many evening meals over the years. The family felt that Murray must have had a guardian angel that kept watch as he hurried to and fro on his many pursuits, including the political ones.

Cathy recalled that Sundays, especially, were family times. After church at St. Margaret's, they would often hit the road for outings, often close to home, perhaps exploring a back road route for ice cream in Bancroft or further afield such as trips to Toronto when brother Phillip was hospitalized there. She spoke of being taught responsibility. First to themselves: candy on the store shelves had to be earned. Responsibility to others was important so the family was taken to community events, then, as they grew older, they had to help out and eventually they became the organizers. As events came up, Murray was always on top of them, gathering the family to attend - likely after the store closed.

The service ended with the choir of which, in recent years, Murray had become a part of. The Gentlemen of Song, reassembled for this tribute, sang No Man is an Island and The Battle Hymn of the Republic. A fine tribute

On Saturday, October 1, 2005, family and friends gathered at the Lloyd Watson Centre in Wilberforce to remember Ken Golby.

Ken, a former language professor at York University in Toronto, had adopted Wilberforce after his first visit in 1981. He bought "a farm," the old Dillman place in South Wilberforce, and he retired there. Parkinson's disease had struck and forced his retirement. With each new advancement in dealing with the disease, Ken was there trying it. According to his great friend and colleague, Richard Payne (Me 'n Len author), Golby was no

In the end, 'Golby' won over Parkinson's

quitter. He battled the disease, attacking it aggressively through grim times. After years of handling this debilitating condition, Ken willingly (and conscious) underwent surgery to have electrodes implanted in his brain. In lay terms, the electrodes triggered once again the production of the secretion, the lack of which causes Parkinson's. Some relief resulted. Ken was able to stay in Wilberforce with help from his friends. And he had many friends, including Sandy Harris and Albert Saxby and their family who became family to him here and who coordinated the Wilberforce celebration of his life.

Ken's brother-in-law, Ron Lee, speaking for himself and Ken's sister, Heather, thanked the people of Wilberforce for their support and for being Ken's friends. His brother, Ian, in Scotland, and elderly mother in Toronto were unable to attend.

Charly Chiarelli played harmonica and Selina Chiarelli sang one of Ken's favourite numbers, Summertime. Ken was a talented poet. Charly read one of his poems, Sky Diving, which richly and clearly told of Ken's feelings during of the two sky dives he so bravely undertook. (Ken had once read this and other poems at the Wilberforce Writers' Circle.)

Young Dakota Harris Saxby read a poem she had written dedicated to Ken.

Ken Golby

She and Bethalin Callfas read another poem in memory of Ken. Lloyd Callfas' story of Ken and the Cookie Mobile was read by Sandy Harris. Ken Sanderson and Albert Saxby also shared memories of "Golby."

Richard Pope's comprehensive, yet loving and even humorous, eulogy was a fine tribute to the man. He spoke of "Golby's" struggles to beat the disease, of always carrying on, helping others, letting others help him, planning the next project.

He spoke of Ken's sense of humour, how he treated Parkinson's with disdain like blackflies. He wore pads everywhere and helmets to soften the blows when he fell, and fell he did, many times.

On July 22, 2005, he fell. He had spent time in Toronto with friends. He was back home in Wilberforce. It was summer and he loved it. He was checking out his place and he fell. Death came instantly at his own place, at the end of a good spell while planning to build a new home.

So, in the end, he won. He died from a fall, not the disease.

And so Ken was, and will be, remembered well, and his time in Wilberforce was celebrated by the folks he befriended here and who befriended and appreciated him. He opened a whole different world to many in this area and in return appreciated and respected the people who help make life good for him. May his hereafter involve no falls, or, at least soft landings.

The Agricultural Fair Board's annual Thanksgiving Turkey Dinner is this Saturday from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the Lloyd Watson Centre. That's October 8, 2005, for a great meal.

And if you are still hungry on Sunday morning, go to the Wilberforce Legion between 9 a.m. and noon for a good, hearty breakfast.

Come on, get out to these community gatherings. Murray won't be there but he'd expect you to go!

Legion's busy!

community news

legion br. 129

Gerald Irish

The Legion in Haliburton is still active and going strong as usual. Many events are planned and great entertainment is coming your way. Entertainment Chairman, Paul Brohm, is doing a great job. His line up for the weeks to come is as follows: October 8 the popular entertainer Bryan Switzer. On the 15th is the country and down east entertainers Seabreeze. Northern Jam, our local talented group, will be with us on the 22nd. Plan now to attend the gala Hallowe'en Dance in the auditorium on the 29th and dance and listen to a great group called Poverty Line. They specialize in 50s and 60s country music.

Our Ladies Auxiliary will be holding their annual Christmas sale on October 29.

On October 2 a fairly large contingent of your executive council attended the Zone convention in Beaverton. I have never been to a convention or seminar at any level of Legion where I didn't gain more insight into Legion.

Anka's candle party attracts many friends

A candle party was held on Friday, Sept. 23 at Anka Barry's as she hosted about fourteen friends and neighbours. Some of them were Debbie Deremo, daughter Courtney Horsley; Brittany Nicholls (with Jordan) and Brianne Elder (with son Owen), Marge Nicholls, Kelly Harrison and daughter Kenall, and Tory-Lynn Holden Anka's niece.

The Party Lite line carries candle holders, candles both fragrant and otherwise and accessories and Anka's the representative and sales lady for these seasonal articles. Her number is 754-2276.

We are sorry to report that Anka's daughter, Helena has suffered a broken left wrist, but is recovering well at home.

guest of honour and the inevitable delicious refreshments rounded off the pleasant afternoon.

Saturday, Oct. 1st was the happy occasion of Pam Nepszy and Jaro Cooper's wedding at Port Cunningham Lodge, Lake of Bays. It was a reunion of much of the Cooper family and of course Stephen and Geraldine Nepszy's family. Louise Cooper had her whole family home from the Thursday previous to the end of the weekend: Nadia and Ian Cooper of Saskatoon, Sask., Pam and Jaro, and Paul and Marlene, Jenny and Stephanie Madden of Mannotick. More details next week. This being written before the happening itself.

It's turkey talk with our foodie, Franka

Well it's that time of year again, turkey time. I for one love turkey, especially with cranberry sauce. Since I am only one of two people in our large family who likes it, no matter where our dinner is I have to bring my own cranberry sauce. It's not BYOB in my family but BYOCS.

Here are some turkey tips for you.

- A 15-pound turkey will feed 8-10 people generously
- Always refrigerate your turkey in the fridge.
- With frozen turkeys, allow five hours per pound to defrost.
- If you must do the cold-water method, make sure the turkey is kept in its original plastic bag and covered with cold water that is constantly refreshed.

- Always stuff the turkey before baking.
- A 12-16 pound turkey needs about five cups of stuffing and two cups in the neck.

If a turkey is too big for your family, try a stuffed turkey breast which is readily available in your local grocery store.

Cranberry Swirl Turkey Breast
 1/3 cup bulgur wheat
 2 tbsp butter
 4 onions sliced
 3/4 cup coarsely chopped cranberries
 2 tbsp chopped fresh parsley
 1/2 tsp rosemary
 1 1/2 tsp salt
 1/4 tsp pepper

1 whole boneless turkey breast about 4 lbs
1 tbsp vegetable oil

Heat oven to 425°. Bring 2/3 cups of water to boil. Pour over bulgur and let stand 30 minutes. In large frying pan, heat butter over low heat. Add onions and cook, covered, until very soft 15-20 minutes. Transfer to bowl. Stir in drained bulgur, cranberries, parsley, rosemary, salt and pepper.

Lay turkey, skin side down, on a work surface. Lightly pound meat to even thickness of about three-quarter inch. Sprinkle with 1/4 tsp salt. Spread stuffing evenly over turkey. Roll up breast, starting from a long side. Tie with string in several places. Place in a roasting pan. Rub with oil and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Roast 10 minutes. Reduce temperature to 350°F and continue roasting, basting occasionally to an internal temperature of 180°F, about one-and-a-half hours, and let stand 10 minutes.

Cheesecake for pumpkin-lovers

Skim fat from pan juices. Add enough water to equal one cup liquid. Put roasting pan over medium high heat. Bring liquid to a boil while stirring and scraping up browned bits from pan. Add salt and pepper as needed. Slice meat and serve with pan juices.

Tired of pumpkin pie? Try this:
Pumpkin Cheesecake

Crust:

1 tbsp butter softened
1 1/4 cups finely chopped pecans
1/4 cup unseasoned dry breadcrumbs
2 tbsp sugar

2 tbsp butter, melted

Filling:

4 pkg. cream cheese
Softened 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar

2/3 cup sugar
5 eggs
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
2 tsp pumpkin pie spice
2 tablespoons brandy, if desired
16 oz can pumpkin

Sauce:

1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1/4 cup water
1/4 cup butter
1 egg beaten
1/4 cup chopped pecans
1/2 tsp vanilla

Heat oven to 350°F. Butter 9-inch springform pan using 1 tbsp butter. In bowl mix rest of ingredients and drizzle melted butter pecan mixture; toss to combine. Press in bottom and up sides of butter pan. Refrigerate.

In large bowl. Beat cream cheese at medium speed until smooth and creamy. Gradually beat in one cup brown sugar and two-thirds cup sugar until smooth. At low speed, add five eggs one at a time beating until just blended.

In small bowl, combine flour, pumpkin pie spice, brandy and pumpkin; mix well. Gradually add to cream cheese mixture; beat until smooth. Pour into crust lined pan.

Bake at 350°F for one hour and 20 minutes or until centre is set. Turn oven off; open oven door at least 4 inches. Let cheesecake sit in oven for 30 minutes.

Remove cheesecake from oven. Run knife around sides of pan. Cool in pan on wire rack for one hour or until completely cooled. Refrigerate at least four hours or overnight.

Just before serving make sauce in small saucepan, combine one half-cup brown sugar water and one quarter cup butter. Bring to a boil over medium heat. Boil two minutes. Gradually blend small amount of hot syrup into beaten egg. Add egg mixture to saucepan, cook over low heat for one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, stir in quarter cup pecans and vanilla. Serve slightly warm sauce over pie. Store in refrigerator.

Warning: one-sixteenth of a slice is 500 calories but hey, it's Thanksgiving.

Kids' water fest a splashing success

1,000 students soaked in new environmental knowledge

September 28, 29 and 30th marked the First Annual Haliburton-Muskoka Children's Water Festival and it was a splashing success. Water covers 75% of the surface of our Earth and makes up more than 50% of our bodies. Water is the most precious resource on our planet. Without it nothing survives. Having abundant, clean water is both a privilege and a responsibility.

To protect our water for future generations, we must instill in our youth an awareness of its benefits and promote stewardship of our environment. During the three

community news

harcourt

Valerie Smith
448-3840

days of the festival 1,000 students took part in a unique environmental learning opportunity. They played in the mud and built beaver dams and saw the effects of the dams. They learnt about septic sites and doing the laundry in pioneer days. They learnt about bugs in the mud and searching for water with divining rods and so much more. The activity centres featured topics that are part of the Ontario school curriculum, teaching children water use, consumption and protection. At every activity centre the children paid attention to the presenters and asked numerous questions. As you looked into their eyes you could see they were enjoying learning about something that was tremendously important.

I am sure every child left the festival with a broader understanding of the value of water and the need to conserve this life-sustaining resource.

Our local Word of Life Outreach Centre continues to reach out and touch the lives of many families and now we have two such centres. There is one centre in Highland Grove and one in Wilberforce. Both facilities have good quality used clothes and some new. Prices continue to be great. Wilberforce Depot hours are Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday and Friday 12 to 5 p.m. and on Saturday 10 – 5 p.m.. Highland Grove Depot is open Tuesday to Friday 10 a.m. – 3 p.m. and on Saturday 10 – 2 p.m.

The Wilberforce Depot has opened an emergency food bank to assist local families as urgent needs arise. Donations of can goods and fresh vegetables are welcome. For further information, please call Clara at 448-3359 or at 448-9406.

The Word of Life also, provides a Kids Club on Friday nights for children ages 5-11 years. This is held at the Highland Grove Church from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Don't forget Harcourt Community Centre continues to offer:

Bingo every Wednesday evening starting at 7:30 p.m. For more information call Debbie Shatraw at 448-3155.

Progressive euchre every Thursday evening starting at 7:30 p.m. This is a smoke-free evening. A break is provided in order that people might smoke outdoors. For further information please call Mel Smith at 448-3640.

October 22: Harcourt's Big Fall Bingo. There will be two $500 jackpots to be won.

For more information call Debbie Shatraw at 448-3155.

Thanks!

The Haliburton-Muskoka Water Festival received a plaque from the Ontario Trillium Foundation in honour of the $25,000 the foundation donated to the event. The three-day festival aimed to educate young students about our most precious resource and hopes to raise environmental awareness. Left to right: The Trillium Foundation's Jeanne Anthon, Festival coordinator Kyla Greenham, and local MPP Laurie Scott.

ADVERTISING SALES REPRESENTATIVE

Osprey Media is one of Canada's leading publishers of daily and weekly newspapers, magazines and specialty publications with 21 daily newspapers, 28 weekly newspapers and 30 magazines and specialty print publications in 46 markets across Ontario.

Osprey Media Group's local newspapers are entrenched in their communities and are well-recognized brand leaders.

Newspapers such as The Kingston Whig-Standard, The St.

Catharines Standard, The Peterborough Examiner, The Barrie Examiner, The Orillia

Packet & Times, The Enterprise Bulletin, The Midland Free Press

and many others have been serving their communities for more than a hundred years.

The Haliburton County Echo and The Times, Minden require an enthusiastic, positive, bright and hard working person to join our sales team.

The successful candidate will play a key role in growing the newspapers' advertising revenues and client base.

Experience in advertising sales, especially in a print media environment, is a definite asset, however we will provide ongoing training to someone who brings the right qualities of a positive personality, lots of energy, excellent written and verbal communication skills, and a desire to succeed in a fast-paced, deadline-driven environment.

Key responsibilities:

- Represent the newspapers and associated special publications to a wide range of local business clients.
- Develop and implement strategies to help customers grow their businesses.
- Achieve account sales revenue targets
- Make cold calls to market the newspapers' services to local and regional businesses.

Qualifications:

- Proven customer service skills
- Excellent time management skills
- A creative, positive approach to problem solving
- A people person and team player
- A reliable vehicle

IT IS WITH SINCERE APPRECI-ATION we thank all staff at Highland Wood Long Care for their support and affection in our time of sorrow. They went above and beyond their roles as professionals, caregivers and support staff. We admire and respect these dedicated people of such integrity and know their jobs are not easy ones.
Everyone enriched our mother's life and I'm sure she is smiling down on all of you. to Barry Cray, staff and Gordon Monk of Monk Funeral Home.
Our most sincere gratitude for being so diligent and compassionate. Everyone went above and beyond to help make this trying time more easier. Our Mother Lee Yewman, was beautiful and peaceful and from the bottom of our hearts, Thank You. Gordie Yew-man, Beverly MacDuff.

NORMA, RONNIE & JAMIE would like to say a Special Thank You to the person who provided the boys with passes to the Kinnmount Fair. Your kindness was greatly appreciated.

WE WOULD LIKE to express our sincere appreciation for all the loving care and concern extended to us by means of family, friends and neighbours during the illness and death of Al Johnson our Beloved Husband and Father and Grandfather. The dedication to Al's care by Dr. Heyes and Dr. Ferrecuti, nurses, Haliburton Hospital and Dr. Dave Fiddler and nurses at Minden Hospital. The paramedics and firemen for their speed and gentle care will always be remembered with gratitude. Thank you! To the Monk family, thank you for taking care of all the arrangements. Thank you to Herman for an encouraging memorial discourse. Thank you to the Haliburton

AT REST GEORGE CRAWFORD STEPHENSON

Passed away peacefully at his home in Dorset on October 2, 2005. At the age of 90.

George was born and raised in Omemee, Ontario. He graduated from the Omemee High School and Lindsay Collegiate. With his brothers, he operated Stephenson's Mill and later Omemee and Fraserville Elevators. He attended Christ Church Anglican, at one time acting as warden. He was a member of the Lorne Masonic Lodge working up to Master of that Lodge. He served for many years on the Omemee Village Council and was reeve for four years. After the loss of the mill by fire he turned his attention to developing and renovating real estate properties in the Haliburton and Bancroft areas. In retirement he lived in Nova Scotia, British Columbia and Dorset, Ontario. He is sadly mourned by Margaret, his wife of 55 years, and by his five children, Frederick of Haliburton, ON., Helen and Donald Robertson of Westbank, B.C., Ruth of Boshkung Lake, ON., Douglas and Joann of Manotick, ON., Jennifer of Nelson, B.C. He will be greatly missed by his three grandchildren Grace, Cosette, and Eve. Brother of the late Arthur, Ethel, William and Charles. Fondly remembered by his nieces, nephews, other family members and friends. Friends are invited to visit the family at the Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home Ltd., 127 Main St., P.O. box 427, Minden, Ont. K0M 2K0 (1-888) 588-5777, on Wednesday October 5, 2005 from 1 p.m. until the time of the Masonic and Funeral Services in our chapel at 2 p.m. Interment at the St. Peter's Church Cemetery, Maple Lake. Reception to follow at the St. Peter's Church (downstairs). In lieu of flowers, memorial donations to the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Foundation (HHHSF) would be appreciated. CA
